The DepEd also prohibited schools from requiring payment of contributions before admission and from refusing to enroll students due to lack of required documents, such as class records, report cards and birth certificates.

However, it allows the collection of voluntary fees for Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross and the anti-bullying club drive.

Other complaints received by the DepEd included enrolling schoolchildren for transfers, the proliferation of ambulant vendors around schools, and confusion in class schedules.

Almost quickly stressed that the DepEd received fewer complaints this year compared to the other years.

Overall, the secretary said, the opening of the school year "turned out well," taking his statement on reports he received from the Philippine National Police, the National Capital Region Police Office (NCRO) and the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority.

He also noted that "Baptist Union" had voted away from the country and avoided attending schoolchildren on the first day of school.

No longer most congested

Yesterday, Abad paid a visit to the Rizal National High School in Pasig City, which was once "the most congested school in the world" with some 24,000 students.

He said his department, together with local government officials, was able to disperse the already dispersing most of the students to six other schools. As a result, the school now has a population of only 9,000 students.

A total of 17.6 million public school students trooped back to the country's 42,000 public elementary and high schools. Another 4.4 million students remained in private schools, colleges and universities around the country.

The student population had increased by 1.85 percent since last year due to the enrollment of students from private schools to public schools because of the rising cost of tuition.

The DepEd also said it had trimmed the classroom shortage to only 8,400 from 37,000.

Unbelievable claim

"Unbelievable," was how DepEd Under Sec. Renato Canino described Abad's claim that the classroom shortage had been reduced without new classrooms being built by the government.

"Anything single cannot do its ordinary work because shortages which prevent and hinder those of first-hand," said Canino, adding that the 14,800 new teachers to be recruited by the DepEd for "immediate start" of the 49,000 needed across the country.

Canino, chair of the House subcommittee on students and teachers' welfare and vice chair of the House committee on basic education, said he wanted to remind Abad and Budget Secretary Benigno Aquino to explain the formula used to prove that the problem had been addressed despite scarce budgetary allocations.

Please explain

"How can DepEd suddenly reduce classroom shortage from about 37,000 to 8,400? It must be magic. Reorganization with color-coded shortages. The most precise figure should be 37,000 for class size of 50 which is more than the number than the shortage in estimated of public schools," said Canino.

The more plausible explanation was that Abad was "only making do with the grossly inadequate budget given him by the current Malacanan corruption," which is P862.42 billion this year, said Canino.

The lawmaker estimated that 972 billion was needed to stamp out shortages in public schools: 27,000 classrooms, 1.46 million seats, 24.7 million textbooks and about 30,000 teachers.

"972 billion is too small a bill compared to almost half a trillion pesos that the Arroyo has long refused to be appropriated for the most indispensable expenses such as military intelligence, military modernization and foreign debt payments," he said.

He reiterated his call on students and parents to direct their protests at the Arroyo, saying "the misappropriation of armed appropriations have resulted in shortages of educational services or education, among others."

"Mr. Arroyo is specifically putting people into poverty and underdevelopment due to high cost of education and the lack of adequate state funding for public education," Canino said. "This is the single biggest stumbling block to enlarged appropriations for our public schools."

Paper solution

The Alliance of Government Teachers also disputed the DepEd's claim that it had studied the nationwide shortage of classrooms in public schools by implementing a "two-shift policy" ensuring that this was only a "paper solution."

"It seems [Arroyo was] a magic wand [and] solved the chronic classroom shortage overnight," said ACT chair Antonio Tinto.

"However, it's a paper solution, not a real one. In the real world, those schools that are experiencing shortages are already implementing two- or three-shift schedules. The majority of schools that remain on a one-shift schedule do so because one shift is all they need," Tinto said.

He added that the two-shift policy would only work if it was coupled with a provision for transferring students from congested schools to ones with adequate classrooms. "But DepEd does not provide for that. Moreover, many students and parents would find that impractical."

Teacher shortage

In addition, Tinto said the classroom shortage went hand in hand with the teacher shortage.

"Even if more classrooms become available, there won't be enough teachers to handle the additional sections. Two shifts would mean doubling the number of sections in a school. Where are the teachers who will handle those extra sections?" he asked.

He noted that this school year's teacher shortage stands at 40,000, adding that the current teaching force was "already overloaded yet underpaid."

Tinto and his group urged the DepEd for unbundling the public on the same.

"Instead of selling it like it is, they like to judge the data when it comes to classroom shortages. Last year, they claimed that they had reduced the classroom shortage from 37,000 to 10,700. It turns out that they brought down the figure merely by changing the formula for computing shortages. They are now using a classroom pupil ratio of 1:50 instead of 1:45," explained Tinto.

The ACT noted that the shortage claimed by DepEd would have a major impact on the education budget that Malacanan would submit to Congress. "It's crucial that they get the numbers right. If they understate the classroom shortage, then DepEd will continue to receive the pitifully inadequate classroom construction budget that they've been receiving for the past four years."

"Participating won't do it. The only real solution to classroom shortages is to build more classrooms," said Tinto.

Better-designed schools

According to engineer Federico Mito, a member of the Department of Public Works and Highways task force on school buildings, the government has built a total of 9,250 classrooms since July last year.

A total of 1,951 classrooms are under construction, while 2,417 are in the preconstruction stage. There is yet to be the period of July 2004 to December 2005 is 12,535 classrooms.

Mito also said the department had come up with a design for cheaper yet structurally superior public school school buildings.

Under the DPWH's proposed design, the new school buildings' frames would be made of reinforced steel I-beam for beams and columns. The steel sheet materials for the panels would be warranted against defects and corrosion for 10 years.

The components would be lightweight and could be installed manually without the use of cranes.

The buildings would also be completed in 10-12 days, including foundation and painting finish, and cost 11 percent less than the 4-type schools and a magnitude 6.0, 7 or 8 quake.

Other features of the new design are full sanitation from toilet and shower, including sinks from heavy cars. The structure will be fully shielded from sideways intrusion to protect books, computers and other sensitive materials.

The DPWH is still evaluating sites with flat and accessible parcels where the newly designed buildings could be built.

AFP says Boracay resort family-oriented

Think, anything for the family?

The 60-room Sarsapukan Family Recreation Center in Boracay, Marikina, Boracay, is an "amusement" and "mother" facility intended for soldiers to bond and spend quality time with their families, said Lt. Gen. Emmanuel Teodoro, Armed Forces Command (Cencom) chief.

If soldiers plan to hold a weekend of bonding and parties at the center, they will have to change their plans, Teodoro said yesterday in a news conference.

Since it is a family-oriented facility, drinking, gambling and smoking are not allowed in the resort. Guests are also prohibited from wearing uniforms and from bringing in firearms.

The resort staff can even ask for the identification card of a soldier's wife if they have reason to doubt her actual status.

An unmarried soldier can check in and avail himself of a dormitory-type accommodation but he cannot bring his girlfriend with him.

"Our society focuses on extramarital activities," said Teodoro, stressing that the resort is aimed at strengthening the marriage bond.

Teodoro disclosed that many military families had broken up mainly because the husband-soldier was away serving the country.

"Children don't get to see their fathers because their jobs take them away from their families," he said.

Soldiers are people, too

According to Teodoro, some people don't seem to appreciate the sacrifices made by soldiers and their families. Instead, these people regard them as "working men" who do not deserve to enjoy a vacation in Boracay with their families.

"Why? Is Boracay not also for soldiers (and their families) to enjoy?" he said.

The resort, which cost at least P10 million to construct, was built with donations from members of the Kapisap ng mga Kawal sa Kapusap (KKK) foundation.

KKK president Nelson Yevalla said his group came up with the idea for the project after hearing and studies of how some families of soldiers had broken up and some children of soldiers had turned to illegal drugs.

To strengthen family values, he said, the family should be supported.

Affordable rates

But, Yevalla said, a trip to the mall would not be as fulfilling as bringing the entire family to Boracay, a "combined" family-friendly vacation.

With affordable rates at the resort, he said, soldiers could fulfill this dream with their families.

Teodoro stressed that the facility's priority would be the ordinary soldier because the generals could afford to stay in other resorts in Boracay.

The resort rates are based on the rank base pay. A general and admiral will pay P1,250 per night while a soldier with a rank of private will only be charged P500 a night.

Teodoro said the facility was similar to Huk (Huk Moron) Moron, Hawaii, a first-class hotel and recreation facility for members of the US military and their families at affordable rates.

He said the military would also ask shipping companies to give special discounts to soldiers who would go to Boracay with their families.

Basic needs

But the construction of the resort would have been criticized by workers concerned with the lack of basic needs of troops in the battlefield.

The offer to let the military accept the offer of the KKK to put up the resort in Boracay in order to boost the morale of the soldiers and to give them an opportunity to spend time with their families in the famous island resort.

He said the KKK did not want to replace the obligation of the government to provide better pay, health services and equipment, among other things, to the soldiers.

Other projects

But he said the KKK was also planning to come up with other projects, including financial assistance to widows affected by calamities and educational scholarship for orphans of combat casualties.

Teodoro took exception to the harsh criticism about the construction of the resort. It is not even on the beach front, where the rich like to, but about a kilometer from the coastline, he said.

"We're being Sarsapukan and wouldn't we just enjoy the big national treasure by showcasing our Boracay (Don't soldiers have the right to enjoy the national treasure called Boracay)," he said in an emotional speech during the flag-raising ceremony at Camp Lapu-Lapu, the Cencom headquarters in Marikina City.

Donations still accepted

At first, Yevalla said the project was intended for Cencom. Plans changed and the facility would be opened to the entire Armed Forces.

Yevalla said more than 1,000 KKK members from all over the country had donated to the project. The donations ranged from P10 to P50,000. Others gave air-conditioning units, TVs and fridges.

Yevalla said his group would send the book of donations to the United States because Filipino communities there might also want to give donations.

He urged people to support the "Yevalla" and show their appreciation for services rendered by the soldiers.

PAF names 1st woman search-rescue pilot

By Mike Bryan

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — The Philippine Air Force (PAF) has named its first woman search and rescue pilot, Capt. Arlene B. Ballesteros.

Ballesteros, 34, is a graduate of the PAF's Search and Rescue Pilot Course, which she completed last month. She is the first woman to graduate from the course.

The PAF's Search and Rescue Pilot Course is a two-year program that trains pilots in search and rescue operations. It is one of the most demanding and dangerous courses in the PAF.

DOLE rejects Int'l School appeal

THE DEPARTMENT of Labor and Employment has rejected the appeal of International School Manila which had been ordered to pay its Filipino faculty members $7 million in back wages by the Supreme Court.

In a resolution dated May 31, Labor Secretary Patricia Sca. Tomas ordered ISM and the local-lire faculty union, the International School Alliance of Educators, to expedite the settlement of their 10-year-old dispute, giving both parties non-amendable deadlines.

According to the order, the ISAE must submit a verified list of the employees covered by the DOLE order and the amounts due them by June 2.

The school was also compelled to comment on the ISAE computations within five days of receipt of the ISAE documents, after which a writ of execution shall be issued by the DOLE.

The reversal DOLE resolution deemed the school's motion for reconsideration as lacking in merit, with "no new arguments advanced by the school, to convince this office that an error was committed in the issuance of the assailed order."

"We are no expert or compelling reasons to disturb our earlier ruling," Sec. Tomas said in her three-page decision, referring to her order of April 1, 2003, which goes back to an earlier order dated Feb. 12, 2002.

The DOLE assumed jurisdiction over the labor dispute between ISM and ISAE's 176 members on Sept. 22, 1995, on several issues that included salary and benefits parity among foreign-lires and local-lires.

When the department ruled against them, the union brought the case to the Supreme Court, which said granting higher salaries to foreign-lires constituted racial discrimination against Filipinos in violation of the equal protection clause of the Constitution.

Decide Luisita case quickly, Señeres urged

TWO MILITANT workers groups yesterday asked outgoing National Labor Relations Commission chair Roy Señeres to decide quickly the labor case filed by striking plantation workers against the management of Hacienda Luisita in Batangas.

In a joint press statement, the farmers' group Union ng mga Manggagawa sa Agrikultura and the fisherfolk organization Pambakapag said

Señeres would be doing a "remarkable job of patriotism and statesmanship" if he decided the labor case pending before the NLRC in favor of the hacienda workers represented by the United Luisita Workers Union.

Señeres is NLRC chief until June 30 when his resignation takes effect.

Pambakapag national chair Remonito Hicap said Señeres could decide on the labor case in less than a week.

"He still has the constitutional powers at his disposal to decide the case in favor of the striking workers of Hacienda Luisita," Hicap said.

USMA national coordinator Roy Morille said a ruling in favor of the workers would spell alleged maneuverings to the case by Malacanan and the hacienda owners, the Cuyangans.

"We appeal to Commissioner Señeres to make a decision now in favor of the moral and legal cause of the Hacienda Luisita workers. This is not important legacy he can leave to the Filipino people before he leaves public service," Morille said.

There is a large body of research indicating that there are no significant associations between reading or writing skills and social skills in children with autism. For example, in a study of 10 children with autism, Gillberg and Gillberg (1989) found no significant correlations between reading or writing skills and social skills. Similarly, in a study of 10 children with autism, Gillberg and Gillberg (1989) found no significant correlations between reading or writing skills and social skills.

Spice has been used for centuries to enhance the flavor of food. It is also a natural preservative and can help to fight off bacteria and viruses. Some of the most common spices used in cooking are pepper, salt, and garlic. These spices are also known to have health benefits. For example, pepper is known to improve digestion and reduce inflammation. Salt is essential for maintaining fluid balance in the body, and garlic is known to have antibacterial and antiviral properties. So, the next time you are cooking, don't forget to add some spice to your dish. It not only tastes good, but it can also be good for you.

1. The first step is to identify the variables involved in the problem. In this case, the variables are the number of hours worked (H) and the number of units produced (U).

Saddam to be tried on just 12 charges

BAGHDAD—Iraq said it would bring 12 charges of crimes against humanity against Saddam Hussein although there were more than 500 possible crimes against the ousted dictator.

The Iraqi government also announced Sunday the arrest of two senior members of the organization of Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, the alleged leader of the al-Qaida terror network in Iraq.

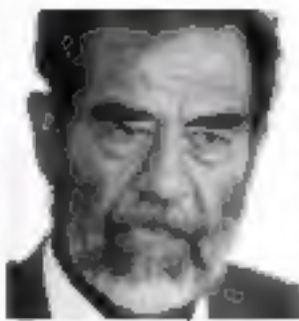

"There are possibly more than 500 crimes being prepared against Saddam Hussein, but there is no reason to waste time in dealing with them all," government spokesman Lueth Rifai told reporters.

"We are completely confident that the 12 fully substantiated charges that have been brought against him are more than sufficient to ensure he receives the maximum sentence."

Saddam, whose regime was toppled in April 2003 and is now in US custody in Iraq awaiting trial, could face the death penalty if found guilty.

His trial should begin within two months, said Rifai.

This is the first time that list of charges to be brought against Saddam has been announced, although the judge in charge of his trial said on Saturday that 12 charges had been investigated so far.

SADDAM

Saddam faces a litany of accusations from his more than two decades in power including the 1994 chemical attack on the Kurdish village of Halabja, the 1998 repression of the 1997 Shiite rebellion and the 1990 invasion of Kuwait.

State TV in Iraq, which bought a war with Saddam's Iraq between 1980-1988, quoted Sunday Iraqi media had handed over Iraq's accusations against the former Iraqi dictator to the court that will try him.

Rifai vowed that the Shiite-led interim government of Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari would craft one what he described as the "Saddam dossier, based on the Iraqis' and Saddam's own words."

Saddam's loyalists and foreign Islamic affiliates are accused of fueling the insurgency which retook yesterday from much of the once-shattered Shiite Arab community.

Two senior members of Zarqawi, an Iraqi Zarqawi's network were recently arrested in the northern city of Mosul.

Muhammad Mahdi al-Hadi, also known as Abu Raed, was arrested in Mosul on May 28, a government statement said Sunday.

Abu Raed is described as a close aide to Abu Talha, the Mosul chief of Zarqawi's al-Qaida Organization in the Land of Two Rivers, and his financial manager.

"Abu Raed is responsible for organizing his meetings with other terrorists and is aware of all his plots and crimes," it said.

The announcement of Abu Raed's arrest comes three days after the capture of another Zarqawi associate in Mosul.

Zarqawi, who has $25-million bounty on his head, is believed to have been wounded, but the severity of his wounds are not immediately known.

But Iraqi Foreign Minister Hashim al-Jabouri said CNN television that arrest in Iraq was likely to facilitate work of Iraqi or US forces capture Zarqawi. APF

US military destroys insurgent bunkers

BAGHDAD—The US military said Monday it destroyed two bunkers suspected of being used by insurgents to store weapons and plan attacks as seven members of Iraq's security forces were wounded in two separate bombings.

US forces destroyed a former Republican Guard bunker system in the Baghdad area southwest of the capital on Thursday following a tip-off by local residents and surveillance of the site, said a military statement.

It said the bunker, located in an area that housed a major part of central director Saddam Hussein's former military industrial complex, was being used by insurgents to store ammunition.

"Coalition forces engaged the complex with fire high-precision smart bombs," it said.

"Secondary detonations emanating from inside the complex" continued for about an hour after the strike, but no civilians were injured in the operation, the statement added.

On Sunday, US troops destroyed a bunker system built in an abandoned rock quarry in Ramhah, near the former rebel base of Falluja west of Baghdad, which had been used for days earlier.

About 150 kg of plastic explosives were used to destroy the network and the weapons moved inside, the military said, adding that 12 weapons caches were also found within an eight kilometer radius of the bunker.

The whole complex was 170 meters wide and 275 meters long or higher than four football pitches and took road inside showed the bunker had been recently inhabited.

Fifty furnished living spaces were found in the network, along with a kitchen, showers and an air conditioner. It also contained equipment such as night vision goggles and a large bank of weapons and ammunition.

In US and Iraqi forces pressed in with Operation Lightning sword: finding out insurgents in Baghdad and surrounding areas, which struck again Monday against their favored target.

Three members of the elite Iraqi commando force were wounded in a car bombing in the capital's southwestern Al-Jadid neighborhood, said a source at the interior ministry.

Earlier, four Iraqi soldiers were wounded when a vehicle ran over a minefield set up at the entrance of a joint US-Iraq security coordination center in Tikrit, Saddam's home some north of Baghdad, said local police.

A US soldier died Sunday after his patrol was struck by a roadside bomb near Baghdad's northern city of Tikrit, the US military said Monday.

The latest deaths brought the number of US service personnel killed in Iraq to 1,672, according to an AFP tally based on Pentagon figures.

More than 1,200 suspects have been arrested since the launch of Operation Lightning at the end of May, one of the bloodiest months since the US-led invasion of March 2003 that saw about 700 Iraqis killed in a series of attacks throughout the country. APF

Japanese FM calls China's war shrine criticism 'absurd,' defends history text

TOKYO—Japanese Foreign Minister Nobutaka Machimura on Monday called China's criticism of visits to a war shrine "absurd" and defended a controversial history textbook, accusing Beijing of ignoring Tokyo's pacifist record as a deterrent.

China has said relations were at a three-decade low due to its annual pilgrimages by Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi to the Yasukuni shrine, which honors 2.46 million Japanese war dead, including 14 carriers of war criminals.

"As soon as he visited the Yasukuni shrine, China said Japan was turning to militarism and we were not peaceful. This is absurd," Machimura said.

"We gave them aid, even by losing defeat-covering funds. At least in the '90s, we were the world's biggest provider of aid" to China.

"I can say this proudly," Machimura told a foreign ministry meeting on foreign aid.

Koizumi has visited the Yasukuni shrine each year since he took office in 2001, with his last visit on Jan. 1, 2004.

He has indicated he will go again this year despite criticism from China and South Korea, which were involved by Japan in the 20th century and also appeals by former prime ministers concerned about Japan's diplomatic isolation.

In April, sometimes violent protests erupted in China, which accuses Japan of not atoning for its past after Tokyo approved a history textbook written by self-described nationalists who believe Japan is too apologetic about its wartime record.

But Machimura defended the book by the Pinnacle publisher, saying that "leftist Japanese scholars and journalists" had taken the same sort of proportion.

"If you read the textbooks you know," Machimura said. "Obviously there is no textbook that praises militarism and colonialism."

"The teachers' union would not adopt a textbook unless it has left-leaning passages," Machimura told a lawmakers' meeting by Jiji Press.

"Even the Pinnacle book is on the center of the highway. Certainly not on the right-side street. Certainly not on the left-side," he said, using a golf analogy.

"I think the textbook problem was formed only by steps and prejudice. If we explain, the issue can be understood," he said. APF

EXERCISE OF THE WEEK

Back extension on stability ball

Back extension strengthens the muscles that support the lower back and is a key exercise for people with back pain. It also helps to improve posture and core strength. To perform this exercise, lie on your back with your knees bent and feet flat on the floor. Lift your hips until your shoulders, hips, and knees are in a straight line. Hold for 10-15 seconds and repeat 10-15 times.

How to do it: Lie on your back with your knees bent and feet flat on the floor. Lift your hips until your shoulders, hips, and knees are in a straight line. Hold for 10-15 seconds and repeat 10-15 times.

Benefits: Improves posture, strengthens lower back muscles, and helps to prevent back pain.

I have been told that back extension is one of the best exercises for strengthening the lower back. I've been doing it for a few weeks now and I can already feel the difference. My back feels stronger and I'm not as tired after a long day of work. I've also noticed that my posture has improved and I'm not as hunched over as I was before. I'm going to keep doing this exercise every day and see how much more I can improve.

Why sleep

Eliza Jurek

Why sleep? Sleep is essential for our health and well-being. It helps to restore energy, improve mood, and strengthen the immune system. Lack of sleep can lead to a variety of health problems, including high blood pressure, heart disease, and depression. It can also affect our ability to think clearly and make good decisions. So, make sure you're getting enough sleep every night.

How much sleep? Most adults need about 7-9 hours of sleep per night. Children and teenagers need more sleep, while older adults need less. Everyone's needs are different, so listen to your body and adjust accordingly.

How to get more sleep: Establish a regular sleep schedule, avoid caffeine and alcohol before bed, and create a relaxing bedtime routine. If you're having trouble sleeping, talk to your doctor.
